

CHINATOWN HEALTH CLINIC FOUNDATION

2018 ANNUAL REPORT

a year's overview

DEAR FRIENDS

The Chinatown Health Clinic Foundation is proud to share with you our achievements this past year, a year in which we touched more lives than ever before thanks to your support. The Foundation is driven to be at the forefront of improving the accessibility of quality health care and providing career development and learning opportunities for our most vulnerable populations.

The Foundation promotes community-based health care services, such as those provided by the Charles B. Wang Community Health Center. Through special funds and grants from you and other generous donors, medically underserved communities in New York City are able to access patient support services including social work, patient navigation, and programs for children with special health care needs.

Board President

Through the Dickson Hee Scholarship, your gifts supported staff by providing them with the mentorship, tools, and technology they need to save and transform lives. The Foundation also supports the Dr. Thomas Tam Scholarship, which helps in paving high school students' paths to their highest potential.

Each gift or gesture of partnership offers encouragement, hope, and promise. All of them are made possible through the support of our generous friends and partners, contributing to the success of our programs, scholarships, and capital campaigns.

Thank you for standing shoulder to shoulder with us and making quality health care a reality.

Last year, more than 61,000 people in our community turned to the Charles B. Wang Community Health Center for 308,000 medical and dental visits.

Many are low-income Asian Americans with limited English proficiency.

Some are uninsured and have difficulty getting the care they need because of language or cultural barriers.

Your donations this past year helped improve access to quality health care for underserved Asian Americans and other vulnerable populations.

DICKSON HEE SCHOLARSHIP

Recipients are Health Center employees awarded scholarships to enroll in a course or training program that will enable them to improve their skills and competencies.

The scholarship was established in honor of Mr. Dickson Hee, former chair of the board of directors of the Charles B. Wang Community Health Center. Mr. Hee served on the board for nine years and was chair from 2001-2003. Hee had an MBA in health care and finance, and graduated from Queens College and Columbia University. He was the president of Hong Hop Noodle and worked in the health care sector with Booz Allen and Kidder Peabody. The scholarship provides professional development opportunities for health care workers and support staff who provide critical care and services at the frontlines of the Health Center.

DR. THOMAS TAM SCHOLARSHIP

The scholarship is awarded annually to high school students who participate in the Health Center's Teen Resource Center and other programs.

The scholarship honors Dr. Thomas Tam who initiated the 1971 Chinatown Health Fair and was a co-founder of the Charles B. Wang Community Health Center. He was also the first director for Project AHEAD, the oldest continuous health careers training program focusing on Asian American health based in a community health center. Dr. Tam was the first Asian American member of the Board of Trustees at City University of New York and executive director of the Asian American/Asian Research Institute, City University of New York.

"Community is the invocation of commonality in fostering unity. It can be shared heritage, living space, goals, interests, experience, and most importantly, to inspire one another. The heart of the bond within communities is the shared characteristic that forges a sense of togetherness as the community together indulges or explores or simply enjoys that characteristic."

Joyce Wu

"A community is a group of people that care for each other... Being a woman interested in the tech industry is difficult for many other people, but I have the wonderful opportunity of being a part of a community that encourages minority groups to pursue computer science."

Matthew Lee

"I envision [community as] a cohesive group of people dedicated towards coming together and providing the best possible support for each other. Growing up in a diverse neighborhood with no dominating culture or race, it was initially a struggle to find a place within the community. Now... I have a much greater understanding that it was these differences that brought the community together."

Pearl Ngai

"To me, a community is a place where individuals with a shared common experience or training can come together despite their differences in order to work towards a larger, shared goal. During my sophomore year, I participated in the Community Service Learning Program (CSLP) at TRC and gained insight into the immigrant population of Chinatown."
